

Information for the Fairfield School District Community:

8-23-18 – Hearing things like mold remediation and school delay is very difficult and can cause a great deal of anxiety. Please know that we are not alone in this situation as many districts are discovering and dealing with the exact same issues, many due to the same type of antiquated heating systems that are unable to deal with the extreme moisture in the air this summer. Districts in Eastern York, Lancaster County, State College, Milton Area, and Williamsport are testing, remediating, possibly delaying, and otherwise suffering from an excessively rainy and humid season. We are performing a complete remediation and duct cleaning to ensure our buildings are safe and healthy for our students and staff. In addition, we are aggressively working to find the best solutions for our mechanicals to ensure this problem does not return in the future. As of right now, we anticipate our schools being ready for students to safely attend classes on September 4, 2018. Please note that as we progress daily this could change to ensure we do not rush the process or provide inadequate results. Asking for your patience and support at this time is critical to our success as a district.
